WSE carries out classification of companies by sector, including 49 sectors of the national economy, grouped in eight key divisions: Finance; Energy and Fuel; Chemistry and Raw Materials; Manufacturing of Industrial, Construction and Assembly Products; Consumer Goods; Trade and Services; Healthcare and Technologies. To ensure comparability and transparency of the questionnaire, the three macro-sectors have been maintained, i.e. Services, Industry, and Finance, to which the WSE classification has been assigned.

The division allows calculating sectoral indicators for each industry represented at WSE and easy tracking of trends in various economy sectors. Sectors of key importance for stock exchange trading and those with the largest number of representatives have their own sectoral sub-indexes.
